ROOSEVELT'S WAR RECORD DRAWS FIRE

Senator Tydings And Huey Long Pass Words

Washington. May 10.—(P)—An alarum by Senator Long (D-La) to President Roosevelt's war record, during debate over the prospective veto of the Patman new money bonus bill today drew from Senator Tydings (D-Md) an angry warning that Long might face something besides a "veto" argument.

The two Senators clashed as Long, trying to apply pressure on the president to sign the Patman bill, said that Mr. Roosevelt had served during the war as assistant secretary of the navy with a salary of $10,000 a year. Tydings, a veteran, suggested that Long discuss his own war record. The Louisiana Senator did not serve in the war. Meanwhile, backers of the Patman bill in congress and out sought to drum up pressure on President Roosevelt to sign the bill and on the senate to over-ride him if he refuses.

While Long spoke, telegrams were pouring into the White House in response to a campaign waged by the veterans organizations. But there was no indication the chief executive would be swayed from his evident intention to veto the measure as soon as it reaches him. White House attaches had handled more than 5,000 telegrams at midday.

Though already approved by both houses, the bonus bill was held in the senate by its supporters while they used every means available to them to arouse public sentiment for the measure.

Long took the floor, as checks of senate sentiment indicated the administration forces were holding tight to the votes necessary to sustain a veto.

With the usual galleries, the Louisiana Senator buried sharp criticism at the president and Senators opposing the Patman bill, declaring Mr. Roosevelt was "leading the democratic party to slaughter" by advocating "various contradictory measures."

He said the president and a large majority of the senate in 1933 approved a bill which permitted banks to get new currency for bonds not yet due.

"The only difference between that bill and the bonus," he said, "is that senators can still get the interest on bonds and the soldiers wouldn't get any interest."

Cook County Will Audit Books First Time Since 1873

Chicago, May 10.—(P)—Robert M. Sweitzer, for 24 years Cook County's clerk, repeated today his declaration that "there won't be any shortage when the audit is finished" as officials awaited a report on the examination of books of the office.

The special audit which followed rumors that a shortage of from $100,000 to $400,000 existed, was ordered after Michael J. Flynn, Sweitzer's successor, refused to sign a receipt for the office until the books had been checked. Sweitzer, now county treasurer, declared the shortage rumors "silly and baseless."

The audit disclosed that no complete check of the clerk's books had been made since 1873, officials said. In case shortage is discovered the county would be protected by the $100,000 annual bond the County Clerk must post, they said.

FEDERAL AGENTS CHASING CHAIN LETTER WRITERS

Gamblers And Burglars Are Trying To Reap A Harvest

Kansas City May 10.—(P)—The chain letter "road to fortune," already clogged by thousands of amateurs, was greased to slippery proportions tonight by gamblers, burglars—and Uncle Sam's agents.

The professionals were after the amateurs to take them for a trimming. The agents were after evidence against both.

But the chain craze spread like dandelions in spring. No sooner did disillusionment dig it out of Springfield, Mo., than it swept over St. Louis, Oklahoma City, Fayetteville, Ark., and, and so on.

Intruding promoters made a quick haul at Pittsburg, Kas., before police got the order from Mayor Phillip Schmidt, a minister, to "clean out those rackets."

The professionals there started a $1 chain, getting in on the profits which accrue to the few who enter the game early. Tom Stowes, police sergeant, estimated the promoters made more than $1,500 overnight. Hundreds who lost flooded police headquarters with complaints today police found the promoters had left with batches of letters after promising contributors to deliver them elsewhere in Missouri to save postage and avoid prosecution.

Burglars broke into a branch post office at Springfield, Mo., before it opened today, tearing letters in a search for coins and bills.

In Springfield, where Thursday $2, $3 and $5 chains had a landside business, the bad was almost dead. Several Springfield's "operators" were reported planning to move to Tulsa, Okla.

Postal inspectors were sent from Washington to cities where the craze is at its height, instructed to seek evidence of any postal law violations.

Seven arrests have been made at San Antonio, Tex., and three in Denver—where the chain letter fad apparently got its start—on fraud accusations. Receipt at the White House of more than 200 chain letters spurred government officials to action.

Five Go To Chair

Friday was the fatal day for five murderers in two American states. Illinois and Texas acted to exact the supreme penalty from men who had violated the moral and statutory codes by committing murder. It was a general pay day for criminals, and the law claimed a victory for justice. Capital punishment is not a boon to an enlightened civilization, but it is salutary in a world where human devility is still more or less unrestrained.

In the old prison at Joliet three men went to the chair shortly after midnight. All were accused of murder in connection with a bank robbery. For them justice had been rather swift, and there were no extenuating circumstances. They demonstrated the theory of the law that he who goes armed to a robbery aims to kill if he is checked.

At the Huntsville, Texas, penitentiary two men walked into the death room and were seated in the fatal chair. One was the notorious Raymond Hamilton, almost the last of the southwest's bad men who have terrorized that section for some years. All of any consequence have met violent deaths. The criminal who goes in for crime in a big way and is cold-blooded about it, usually gets a dramatic fatal finish. They who take up the sword against society must perish by the sword in the hands of society's protectors.

The Timid Jury

The fatal plane accident at Macon, Mo., in which Senator Bronson Cutting was killed, called for a coroner's jury of inquest. One member on the jury was an aviator. When the verdict was brought, the jury stated it thought the plane was flying too close to the ground.

The attorney for the air line was furious. The blaming of the dead pilot was not to his liking. To make its verdict more satisfactory the jury inserted the word "accidental." But still the attorney argued. A third verdict was written, and then a fourth. The jury was obliging.

It would seem that the jury system on which Americans have always relied is very much at fault when a body of six fair-minded men cannot be trusted to bring in a just verdict in a coroner's investigation. The willingness of the coroner and his jurymen to rewrite the verdict was certainly a confession of weakness. An American juror should know his own mind if he is to be fit for jury service. Otherwise the jury system loses its vitality.

Sacrifice Farthest North

"We remain two more years." In this brief telegram to civilization Dr. Harry W. Greist stated the intention of himself and wife to remain at Point Barrow, Alaska, which is farthest north for the United States. An outbreak of influenza has caused the physician to postpone his trip back to the States, as he is convinced it is not safe to leave the nine whites and 325 Eskimos in the community without medical care.

Isolation rules supreme in this outpost. Once a year a supply ship makes Point Barrow, and that at the height of the summer season. A radio station, a school and a trading post are the only reasons for the existence of a white settlement.

Those who stay at Point Barrow make a sacrifice, which is certainly not all for profit. Men could hardly suffice to keep a white man in that region unless he cared little for the home land. One must seek deeper motives for such a sacrifice, motives which call men and women to the service of others less fortunate or less enlightened than themselves.

Return of Byrd

Admiral Byrd and his crew of explorers are back from their second expedition to the South Pole. Friday they were received in Washington. The results of that expedition will not be fully known until Admiral Byrd disseminates the information. It has been reported he will have to work hard on the lecture platform to pay the expenses of the recent venture. What the expedition accomplished could not have been done without the scientific equipment modern achievement has made possible. The explorers kept in constant touch with the world by radio. The hardships they endured were none the less severe, but somehow modern conveniences kept them in better health and lessened the risk of life and limb.

Unbelievable Fact

There is something about this "crime castle" at Warwick, R. I., which almost makes one believe that real life has been copying the movies.

The whole set-up has a faintly unreal, stagey flavor. An isolated mansion full of secret compartments in which stolen gems are concealed; a hidden arsenal for use of highwaymen; a network of understandings and agreements by which the occupants of this castle lent a helping hand to gangsters engaged in robberies in far-away cities; the hint that gangland death sentences were passed and executed in the old house, with the victims' bodies buried somewhere beneath the basement--doesn't all this sound more like a movie scenario than sober fact?

Fact, unfortunately, is what it really is. The whole thing testifies eloquently to the elaborate organization and financing of modern crime--and to society's need for an equally well-organized and financed police group to combat it.

We Can Reduce Accidents

Every 19 minutes some American is killed by an automobile. So far this year our auto traffic has killed 7000 people; and the National Safety Council warns that unless something is done to check the trend our death list for 1935 will be the highest we have ever had.

Perhaps the greatest puzzle in modern life is the complacency with which we accept this state of affairs. Life must be exceedingly cheap in this country when a thing which kills us at the rate of more than 30,000 a year fails to stir us to action.

It is nonsense to say that the rate cannot be reduced. The traffic death rate in Indianapolis, for instance, stands at 36.5 per 100,000 population;

New York City it is 9.7. Similar disparities are to be found all along the line.

We can cut the toll to a fraction of its present size, if we just make up our minds that we are going to do so.

Joe's Really Up in World

Mr. Joe Schechter, the chicken magnate who is the chief defendant in the big NRA test case now being studied by the supreme court, is something of a card.

Long ago Poultry Code Administrator Leroy Peterson telephoned him in New York and said:

"Joe, you're violating the code!"

"I know I am," said Joe, "and I'm going to keep right on violating it."

So the mills of justice began to grind and just the other day Schechter and Peterson met in the corridor outside the supreme court, where a throng of New Deal lawyers, NRA officials, correspondents and others were milling around more or less excitedly.

They agreed they never could have imagined what would come out of that telephone conversation and the poultry man philosophized rather proudly:

"Eighteen years ago it was the United States of America versus Germany."

"Today it's the United States of America versus Joe Schechter!"

A resolution was adopted on the death of Fred C. McDougal, a member of the club who died this week.

Guests of the club yesterday included L. W. Chalcraft of Petersburg,

Number of CCC Workers Will Be Raised; Local Camp on Approved List*Coterie Meets at Klump Home Here*Mrs. E. F. Joy Hostess at Guest Day Gathering; Chapin News Notes

Washington—(AP)—Director Robert Fechner of Emergency Conservation work Friday announced that the number of men working on CCC projects in the state of Illinois will be increased from 14,800 to approximately 18,800 under the expanded program recently approved by President Roosevelt.

At the present time there are 74 CCC camps in Illinois. Under the new program, the number will be increased to 94. Of the 38,300 men who will be enrolled, approximately 16,000 will be sent to work projects in other states.

The Illinois set-up under the expanded program will include 13 camps on national forests, six on drainage camps, 34 on soil erosion camps, 40 in state parks and one on a military reservation.

Locations of the new camps follow: National Forests—Anna, Union county; Bay City, Pope county; Simson, Johnson county; Temple Hill, Pope county.

Military Reservations—Rock Island arsenal.

Soil Erosion—Jo Daviess, Ogle, Winnebago, Morgan, Peoria, Mercer, Marshall, Knox and Carroll counties.

Drainage Camps—Douglas, Iroquois, Greene, Pike, Mason and Henry counties.

Frank Robinson walked into the Journal and Courier office Friday carrying a huge tarantula, which was captured yesterday morning from a bunch of bananas in the Bonansinga wholesale house here. As the tarantula was safely imprisoned in a jar, the office force inspected him in comparative calm.

The capture of one of these huge spiders has become a rather common occurrence at the wholesale house, Mr. Robinson said. There have been more of them come thru on bananas this winter than ever before. It is figured there must be a surplus in the tarantula population in the banana coasts of Central America, and some of them have been compelled to migrate.

The tarantulas vary in size. The one caught Friday was unusually large and had a most vicious appearance. Needless to say, the new arrivals via the banana route are by no means welcome.

Barracks are expected to be erected there this summer. The CCC enrollees will live within the city, but their work will be in the rural sections. Numerous soil erosion projects are contemplated.

Remains of Former Local Woman Brought Here for Interment

Impressive funeral services for Mrs. Herbert Rucker, who before marriage was Miss Hazel Glenn of this city, were conducted Friday morning at the Williamson Funeral Home. A number of relatives and friends from other cities were here for the services.

Rev. M. M. Want at the beginning of the service read the hymn, "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go." At the conclusion of the funeral he read "Mother Let Me Walk With Thee," both being requests of the deceased.

The floral tributes were in care of Mrs. Marion Hall, Mrs. William Lindsay and Miss Elizabeth Hanning.

By LUCILE HARRIS

Editor's Note: "Cookery News Notes" is a new feature of this newspaper, and will be followed with interest by our women readers. The writer is Lucile Harris, staff member of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, recognized authority on cookery of all kinds and especially meat cookery and the planning of meals around the meat course. Experimental cookery has developed a good deal of new information about cooking meat, which is contrary to old ideas. This series of articles will give our readers this new information in helpful form, and will also give a series of excellent recipes and suggestions for serving the meat course of the meal.

POINTS OF CHOICE FOR SELECTING MEAT

Do you know that if you started out to serve a different cut of meat every day, you could run for more than a hundred days, nearly one-third of a year, without a single repetition? I am sure if we were to go over our repertory of meat dishes, we would find it extremely limited; certainly we could never count up to a hundred — in meat cuts that come to our tables. We have a few old stand-bys and we serve them over and over again. With so wide a choice, the meat dish could be a grand surprise almost every meal.

Perhaps the very variety is bewildering, especially to the inexperienced housewife, and so she goes home from the market with one of the few cuts of meat with which she is familiar. But with meat forming, as it does, the basis of so many of our meals and being such an important article of diet, learning how to distinguish one cut from another and how to prepare each cut will be both interesting and profitable.

Dealer Will Help You

But how to go about it? You have a willing and proficient teacher in your retail meat dealer. He displays in his show cases many different meat cuts for you to see — and buy, he hopes. If you see an unfamiliar meat cut in the market, or if you hear your friends talk about cooking a meat dish that is new to you, ask about it in the meat market. He will be able to give you all kinds of information that will be most valuable in adding to your meat repertoire.

How to Judge Quality

There is another hurdle in the path of the shopper for meat and that is how to judge the quality of the different meats. Of course, there are differences in quality of meat, just as in lettuce, tomatoes, potatoes, or any of the other commodities. I should like to emphasize, however, that while one piece of meat may not be of the quality of another piece of meat, the two pieces will be equally valuable from the standpoint of food value.

But what are the points of choice which you should know, so that you may select meat of the quality which pleases you most? Here are a few suggestions which will help you to recognize the quality of the meat you buy. With a little practice you will soon be able to judge the quality for yourself. Let us take the meats one at a time.

Beef

The thickness of the lean meat and the depth of the fat are general indications of quality in all kinds of meat. Choice beef has a smooth, uniform outside covering of clear white fat. The lean will be firm, with a fine texture of light red color. It is finely "marbled"; that is, there is a mixture of fat through the lean flesh.

Veal

Veal will be less firm than beef, and pink in color, rather than red. The lean is fine in grain. The fat is clear, hard, and white and the lean will have very little if any marbling.

Pork

Pork will be a light pink in color and the fat is less firm than that of either beef or lamb.

Lamb

The lean of lamb is a light red and quite firm. Lamb fat is firm and white.

When the kind of meat is chosen, whether it be beef, veal, pork or lamb, then the problem arises of choosing the cut. As you know, some cuts are suitable for roasts, while others are much more satisfactory when cooked by moist heat, as in a stew or pot-roast. Here is a list of the different cuts of meat according to the methods by which they are most satisfactorily cooked:

Beef

Cuts for Roasting: Standing rib, rolled rib, tenderloin, sirloin tip.

Cuts for Broiling: Sirloin, porterhouse, club, tenderloin.

Cuts for Braising: Chuck, shoulder, flank, round, rump.

Cuts for Pot-roasts: Rump, chuck, heel of round.

Cuts for Stewing: Neck, flank, shank, plate, brisket, short ribs, chuck.

Pork

Cuts for Roasting: Loin, ham, shoulder, spareribs.

Cuts for Broiling: Cured ham slices.

Cuts for Braising: Chops, fresh ham slices, shoulder steaks, spareribs.

Cuts for Stewing or Cooking in Water: Shoulder, shank.

Lamb

Cuts for Roasting: Leg, rib, loin, shoulder, breast.

Cuts for Broiling: Rib, loin, shoulder chops.

Cuts for Braising: Shoulder, shoulder chops, breast, neck slices.

Cuts for Stewing: Shoulder, neck, breast.

Veal

Cuts for Roasting: Leg, shoulder, loin.

Cuts for Braising: Chops, steaks, breast, shoulder, leg.

Hog Prices are 10 Cents Lower

Chicago, May 10.—(P)—Hog prices were steady to 10 cents lower today, the market receiving little support from the fact that only 8,000 fresh hogs were received, of which half were direct.

Best medium weight swine sold at $9.10 to $9.20 with the top touching $9.25. Heavier animals sold up to $9.15.

Fed steers and yearlings were mostly steady, the cattle market being largely a clean up affair with only 1,000 fresh heifers on hand. A few loads of good weight steers were taken off the market because of unsatisfactory bids and the bulk of lower grade yearlings and light steers moved at $9.00 to $11.40. All the stock were strong to higher in instances.

Fat lambs and springers were strong to 25 cents up with wool offerings moving at $8.75 to $9.00 mostly. Sheep receipts were 10,000.

CAPPS ANNUAL SALES MEET IS HELD THURSDAY

Department Heads, Sales men and Members of Firm in Attendance

The annual sales convention of Capps & Sons, Ltd., was held at the Peacock Inn last night, with members of the firm, department heads, salesmen and clothing men in attendance. Fourteen salesmen, who will start out Monday with the fall lines were in attendance and heard a very optimistic address from Harry M. Capps, president of the firm.

Following a six o'clock dinner, Mr. Capps gave a very interesting talk on the prospects for business this fall. He then called on each of the salesmen and department heads, who gave short addresses. Optimism was expressed by all the salesmen, who are looking for a very nice business this fall.

Despite the depression the Capps firm's business has shown a healthy gain, which means that Jacksonville will benefit from the increased payroll.

In addition to the salesmen and department heads, several of the firm's customers from Jacksonville, Springfield, Decatur and Quincy were guests at the dinner.

HOLD BANQUET AT CENTENARY

Mothers and Daughters are Honored by Ladies
Aid Society

A mother and daughters banquet was held in the Centenary church on Thursday evening sponsored by the Ladies Aid society. One hundred and twenty women attended the banquet. The tables were beautifully decorated with spring flowers.

A song of thanks was sung with Miss Ellen Beebe as leader. The invocation was given by Mrs. T. H. Buckthorpe, president of the aid society. Songs were sung between courses with Miss Beebe as leader and Miss Miriam Lowrey, accompanist.

Mrs. Anna Baldwin acted as toastmistress. Mrs. Baldwin introduced Mrs. Francis E. Smith who gave the toast for the mothers. This was followed by a vocal solo by Mrs. Dorothy King accompanied by Miss Myrtle Larimore at the piano. The daughters' toast was given by Miss Lela Ferreria.

Mrs. Marian Chase Schaeffer, always a favorite, depicted the age of man like wise woman with appropriate selections. To the encore she responded with "I've been bad all day."

Mrs. Roma N. Hawkins made the address of the evening, choosing as her subject, "Guide-posts on the journey of life." She emphasized the value of work, play, love and worship in pointing the way to the most successful journey through life. Mrs. Hawkins in an easy, conversational manner, conveyed eternal truths.

The program closed with the chorus singing, "O Beautiful for Service sweet."

The evening closed with a pleasant social hour and the entire function was a success, due to the untiring efforts of the committee, Mrs. Claude Vail, Mrs. Anna Baldwin and Mrs. M. M. Blair, together with many assistants.

CARROLLTON MAN INJURED

James Kidd Is Seriously Hurt in Auto Accident; Other News Notes

Carrollton, Ill., May 10.—James Kidd, of this city, while enroute to Pana Monday morning about 7:30, had something go wrong with the brakes of the almost new car he was driving, about one mile north of Reeder. The brakes locked, causing the car to turn over four times, almost completely wrecking it. Kidd was rushed to the Macon County Hospital in Carrollville, where it was found that he is very seriously injured. He sustained a fractured pelvis bone, several broken ribs, the ribs being torn loose and several other bone fractures and many severe internal injuries. While he was doing as well as could be expected Tuesday, the doctors are as yet unable to say how severely he may be injured.

Attend Funeral.

He is survived by a wife and two children. Burial services were held at Davenport.

STUDENTS AT I. S. B. PRESENT GYM PROGRAM

Exhibition by Pupils at State School Is Given Friday

An audience which filled the gymnasium of the School for the Blind witnessed Friday evening an exhibition by the pupils given in an artistic and unusually charming presentation. As the audience gathered the boys' orchestra entertained until the time of the performance. This included a pageant depicting scenes, effectively given in costumes of lovely coloring, showing the villagers, king and queen and royal court.

The choice of queen was announced by the master of ceremonies, as Laetitia Neiles, of Chicago, senior, Margaret Ohund of Hinckley was the maid of honor.

The queen was gowned in white with white robe trimmed in silver, and the maid of honor wore light green organdy. Both carried bouquets of roses. Following the queen came two dainty train bearers, a crown bearer and companion. The queen was crowned with royal splendor and seated upon the throne draped in white surrounded by growing ferns.

The choice of queen had been kept secret and was made by the king, Everett Anderson, of Sandwich, after viewing his subjects in the games and dances. The master of ceremonies was Wells Mori, of Chicago, who with fitting manner served the king during the entertainment, assisted by the page Danny De Natale, of Chicago.

As the royal party were seated on the dais gowned in the purple, orange and white the tableau was one of beauty in every detail.

The theme of the pageant, arranged by Ruth Armstrong and Lucile Nelles of the Philanthropian Literary society, was of a little English village on the first day of May, where an atmosphere of excitement and mystery prevails amongst a group of its citizens assembled there. The king has called them together wherever, they know not, and as the scene opens, the villagers are gathering and discussing his majesty's summons. A conversation ensues led by the master of ceremonies, following a beautiful entrance march.
